

Correspondence Between James Adam, Writer to the Signet, Edinburgh, and the Board of Admiralty, as to Applying Steam Power to Ships of War (Classic Reprint) By James Adam Excerpt from Correspondence Between James Adam Writer to the Signet Edinburgh and the Board of Admiralty as to Applying Steam Power to Ships of War Sir - I am directed by Sir James Graham to ao knowledge the receipt of your letter of the lgth in stant; and to inform you that the Board of Admiralty cannot agree to your request that an advance of lqoo should be made to you for the purpose of trying an experiment of a new mode of equipping steam-vessels. It is not the practice of the Board to make advances of the public money for experiments of this nature; but if you are confident that your plan is a good one and that the advantages of it will be apparent it may perhaps be worth your while to try the experiment at your own expense:

James Adam was a Scottish classicist who taught Classics at Emmanuel College Cambridge and is best known for his commentaries on Plato: Librarian Note: There is than one author in the Goodreads database with this name: About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books, Forgotten Books uses state-of-the-art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy, In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition. We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully; any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works, Correspondence Between James Adam Writer to the Signet Edinburgh and the Board of Admiralty as to Applying Steam Power to Ships of War (Classic Reprint).

. Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work